

Rabbit Run

Tagline:

3 months ago, Rabbit Angstrom ran out to buy his wife cigarettes. He hasn't come home yet.

BIT RUN

SHE

Go away.

HE

What are you talking about?

SHE

Go back to your wife.

HE

I can't. I just left her.

SHE

You're always leaving her.

HE

No, this time it's different. It's really bad.

SHE

You're bad all around. You're bad with me, too.

HE

Why are you saying that?

SHE

Why?

HE

Let me guess. You're pregnant.

SHE

Go away.

HE

Don't you need me?

SHE

Need you? I needed you the night you walked out. Remember how much I needed you--and what you made me do?

HE

Janice was in the hospital. I had to go.

SHE

God, you're cute. You're so holy. You had to go. You know, I was stupid enough to think at least you'd call.

HE

Hey, I didn't know you were pregnant.

SHE

You didn't? Why not? Anybody else would've.

HE

Why the hell didn't you tell me?

SHE

Why should I? What would you have done? You know why I didn't? You'll laugh, but I didn't because I thought you'd leave me. But you left anyway. So why don't you get out? Why are you still here?

HE

I want to be here. It's right. Look, believe it or not, I'm happy that you're pregnant.

SHE

It's too late to be happy.

HE

Why? Why is it too late?

SHE

Forget it. It just doesn't matter anymore.